Preparation for Your Qualifying Exam:
Strategies for Success in any Department

Wednesday, February 17, 2016
Noon - 1:30 pm
MUII, Memorial Union (2nd floor)

For many graduate students the qualifying exam is one of the most uncertain, stressful, and time consuming aspects of their graduate education.

Although the content and structure of qualifying examinations varies widely by discipline, this workshop focuses on universal "strategies for success" that will be valuable to graduate students in all departments. Professor Emeritus Louis Grivetti will present a one hour lecture followed by examples and questions.
